While Sipa will still retain an indirect interest in the royalties through our SilverStream shareholding. The royalties exist over several projects previously identified and discovered by Sipa, reflecting its considerable success as a mineral explorer.'

SilverStream's Chief Executive Officer, Kyle Floyd added:

"The purchase of the royalty portfolio held by Sipa allowed both companies' stakeholders to realize and unlock value from a highly prospective asset base. The transaction will allow Sipa to realize value now for the further development of its core business whilst maintaining more liquid upside exposure to the development of the royalty asset portfolio.

SilverStream has signed a binding agreement with publicly listed Aim 3 Ventures Inc, which is seeking approval to change its name to Vox Royalty, upon completion of the transaction SilverStream will become a publicly traded business."
